Arrest made in Palmer case

ANGELICA INGRAM

Staff Reporter

Last week a significant step in an ongoing investigation was made as OPP announced they had arrested a man in connection to the death of David Palmer.

Forty-seven-year-old William Savage of Fenelon Falls was charged with first degree murder on Oct. 26, according to OPP.

The arrest was made in an investigation that has been ongoing for more than a year, after Palmer went missing last fall. He was last seen on Oct. 2, 2015, and on May 10, OPP confirmed his remains had been found near Haliburton.

Savage was scheduled to appear in the Ontario Court of Justice in Lindsay on Oct. 27. He was remanded in custody until Nov. 3, the date of his next court appearance, said OPP Sergeant and provincial media relations co-ordinator Peter Leon.

"That may be by video, from what I understand, which means he can appear by video from the facility that he's in," said Leon. "He would have been transported down to the jail in Lindsay and

Province reviewing the Ontario Municipal Board

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

The provincial government is conducting a review of and looking at potential reforms to the Ontario Municipal Board, an appointed body which hears appeals on land use decisions made by municipal councils, and Haliburton County is weighing in.

"This review is seeking ways to build on past changes so that the OMB can continue to contribute within the land use planning system," reads a report from county planner Charley White that county councillors accepted during an Oct. 26 meeting. "Accordingly, the government is undertaking consultations and seeking input on potential reforms."

One of those potential reforms is the public funding of appeals on planning decisions, something councillors were staunchly opposed to.

"I think they're dead wrong on this, I think it's like throwing gas on a fire," said Minden Hills Reeve Brent Devolin. "Anybody who has an axe to grind with anything will get a free ride."

His colleagues agreed.

"Challenges will go through the roof because it's a free ride," said Algonquin Highlands Reeve Carol Moffatt. "You need to fix the process, as opposed to funding objections to the process."

"What we're doing now is using taxpayers' money to fight taxpayers," said Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey.

White responded to a questionnaire of more than 20 questions that will be sent to the province as part of its review process.

"What is your perspective on the changes being considered to limit appeals on matters of public interest?" one question asks.

"The continued empowerment of single and upper tier municipalities in the land use planning system results in the in the province making fewer decisions on official plans, official plan amendments, subdivisions and condominiums," White responded. "Limiting appeals on provincial land use planning decisions would have a declining impact on the system as a whole due to the reduced number of decisions being made by the province and may have little long term impact. This may only be an effective tool in geographies where the province is the approval authority over official plans. A change which would make the province's decisions on new official plans or amendments final and not subject to appeal may have the consequence of removing a municipality's ability to appeal a decision which they feel does not consider local interests or planning directions. The local municipality's ability to appeal a decision of the province should be maintained, especially when a municipality is required to implement a provincial plan."

The questions and the planner's responses can be viewed in full by searching the Oct. 26 council agenda on Haliburton County's website.

that's where he will remain until the matter starts to proceed and is dealt with."

Savage was arrested at his home in Fenelon Falls without incident, said Leon.

Leon confirmed that Palmer and Savage were known to each other. He said he could not comment on the nature of their relationship as it is part of the ongoing investigation.

Leon could not speak to the motive for the crime or what specifically led to the arrest.

"It was as a result of the ongoing investigation that culminated in the arrest being undertaken on Wednesday," he said. The charges against Savage have not been proved in court.

According to Leon, the investigation is still ongoing as police are asking the public for help in finding Palmer's wallet, a Samsung flip phone and a St. Louis Blues baseball cap.

"These items belonged to Palmer and were known to be in his possession at the time of his disappearance," said OPP in a media release.

From Bowmanville, Palmer was 47 at the time of his death and was last seen on video surveillance stopping at a gas station on Highway 35 in Pontypool.

Police had recovered Palmer's Honda Accord on Oct. 14, 2015 near Spruce Lake Trail, north of Haliburton.

Anyone with information is being asked to come forward and contact Detective Const. Matthew Carmichael of the City of Kawartha Lakes OPP at 705-324-6741.

Tips can also be made to Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477 or online at www.stopcrimehere.ca. Tipsters may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $2,000.

Summit to look at transportation options

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed by Haliburton County council during an Oct. 26 meeting.

The Haliburton Highlands transportation summit will take place at the Haliburton Legion on Nov. 15 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and include detailed discussion on transportation options for rural communities. The cost is $25, which includes lunch, although subsidies and transportation to the event are available. The deadline for registration is Nov. 7 by noon and those interested can go to www.transportationhaliburtoncounty.ca/summit to register or call 705-455-2665 or 1-844-771-7433.

Howland Junction

Roads director Craig Douglas told councillors that renovations on the Howland Junction trestle bridge near Kinmount were nearly complete. Most of the bridge's new deck had been laid down and Douglas said that a waterproof membrane beneath the deck will keep the rest of the bridge's infrastructure from rotting as the deck, which accommodates snowmobiles using the Haliburton County Rail Trail, deteriorates over time. Since construction began in September, it's been determined that many of the bridge's wooden stringers were rotted, and have been replaced by steel ones. The project was budgeted at $250,000.

On a pool

Warden Carol Moffatt noted the county has received correspondence from a resident requesting that council consider the creation of a community swimming pool.

"That discussion has been held repeatedly at this table," Moffatt said. She noted that Minden Hills is currently undergoing a public input process on renovations to the S.G. Nesbitt Memorial Arena and that county officials are watching that process.

For now, she said, the county really has no comment on the subject of a swimming pool.

ANGELICA INGRAM

Staff Reporter

Michael Redhill will not be showing up in a wig at Pinestone Resort and Conference Centre on Nov. 13.

The acclaimed Canadian writer jokes that one of the most common interview questions he's asked is if he'll be wearing a wig when doing appearances.

The question may seem like an odd one, but it's not that unusual once you consider that Redhill has been writing many of his novels under the pseudonym of Inger Ash Wolfe.

"Not everybody knows the pseudonym is female," he says. "Inger is a female name."

The name was created from a version of his grandmother's maiden name, which was Wolfinger. He chose the name to honour his grandmother, whom he called a great storyteller.

A full-time writer for many decades, Redhill, 50, decided to use a pseudonym because of the anonymity it would afford him.

Redhill says he always wanted to be a writer, as he grew up in a house surrounded by books.

"I made books when I was a kid. I would cut things out and paste them on pages and staple stuff together," he says. "Some of these became best sellers."

He began his true writing career at the ripe age of 14, he jokes, when he created a book of poetry.

"I remember I made what I thought was an elaborate selection of poetry in a duotang. And I painted the title on the cover," says Redhill.

Raised in Toronto, Redhill began publishing poetry for real in the 1980s and moved on to novels in the early 2000s.

Some of his earlier titles include Martin Sloane, Fidelity and Consolation.

After gaining notoriety in literary circles and delving into the world of publishing, (Redhill spent many years involved with Canadian literary magazine Brick, nine as publisher) the writer's career took an interesting turn.

In 2008 a book titled The Calling was published under the pseudonym Inger

Ash Wolfe. It featured a female detective by the name of Hazel Micallef and was later turned into a studio film starring Susan Sarandon.

The novel became the first of many to be published under the fake name, which led to a mystery around the author's identity.

"The idea for the first novel ... came first and I didn't know what to do with it because it didn't feel like something that I would normally write. But it stuck around and I kept developing it," says Redhill. "I think I returned to something that I thought of a number of times in my life, which is that feeling of starting over."

The idea meant Redhill could publish a book without the baggage or positive aspects of having his name behind it, and see what would happen, he said.

"There was a lot of curiosity involved and it was fun," he says. "It was fun at first."

More books were released under the secret identity, all following detective Micallef. Eventually though, the jig was up and in 2012 Redhill identified himself as the writer of these books.

"After the first two books we all realized that not being able to promote the books in the few remaining ways you can promote a book in public was really hurting the series' chances," he says. "I didn't really want to [reveal myself]. It was fun to follow from the sidelines."

Redhill said the identity gave him the opportunity to take a new direction in his career and step away from what he was known for.

He has continued to publish under the pseudonym and will be speaking on the most recent novel, The Night Bell, published in 2015, at the upcoming gala.

Redhill has thought about dabbling into non-fiction, but still has more works of fiction he'd like to complete first.

While he has plans for more books, he isn't releasing too many details anytime soon. A fitting decision for a writer who has chosen paths of mystery.

The Haliburton County Public Library Book Gala will take place on Nov. 13 at 1 p.m. at Pinestone Resort. Tickets are $25 and can be purchased at Master's Bookstore or by calling 705-286-1071.

Haliburton ER to be short-staffed come spring

ANGELICA INGRAM

Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed by the Haliburton Highlands Health Services board of directors during an Oct. 27 meeting.

The Haliburton emergency room will be left with a “really big hole” next spring following the departure of one of its doctors, said Haliburton Highlands Health Services chief of staff Greg Karaguesian.

Karaguesian said he has been seeking out doctors interested in joining HHHS and is in contact with a few.

The departure will be happening sometime around April or May, said Karaguesian.

It will result in a loss of about 14 shifts being covered.

Karaguesian said doctors in Minden can’t help out as many of them do shifts in other area hospitals.

“They are very tight there,” he said. “A lot of them are in other emergency rooms so it’s not like they can stretch any further.”

Karaguesian said every month there are about two to three empty shifts that they’re trying to fill.

Palliative plans moving ahead

After plans for the final phase of the expansion of the new palliative care suite were approved by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care on Oct. 21, the project is moving right along, said HHHS CEO and president Carolyn Plummer.

The CEO said they will be announcing the selected contractor soon and that pre-construction activities are already underway.

As a result of the construction, there will be some reallocation of parking spaces as well as redirection of patient flow, said Plummer.

“We do have a groundbreaking ceremony scheduled for Dec. 2,” she said. “Additional details will be circulated in the near future.”

During her report to the board, Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation executive director Dale Walker said the approval news was welcomed by the foundation and that the Making Moments Matter campaign, which is for the palliative suite, will be included on the Christmas mail-out campaign.

To date $925,000 has been raised for the project, which has a price tag of about $1.1 million.

Walker said funds raised from the upcoming Cash for Care lottery will also go towards the palliative project, with the lottery launch set to coincide with the groundbreaking on Dec. 2.

HHHSF board chairman Peter Oyler said it was his intention to make sure the palliative project did not go over budget and that the goal was to have the remaining funds raised prior to the Rotary Golf Classic next summer.

New chief of staff

A new chief of staff has been announced.

Karaguesian informed the board that doctor Kristy Gammon will be filling the role for a two year term, beginning Jan. 1, 2017.

“She’s agreed to take the post for two years,” he said. “And what we’d like to see is have someone in place, so that when she’s finished the two years there’s a replacement for her.”

Second carjacker given six-month conditional sentence

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

The second of two men convicted in a carjacking that took place in Haliburton Village last December has been sentenced.

Last week, Glenn Hie, who was 48 at the time of the crime, was found guilty of possession of stolen property and dangerous operation of a motor vehicle.

For possession of property obtained by crime valued at more than $5,000 he was given a six-month conditional sentence, 18 months’ probation and a victim surcharge of $200. For dangerous operation of a vehicle, he was given a six-month conditional sentence – to be served concurrently – as well as an additional 18-month probation and a $200 victim surcharge. Hie is also banned from driving for three years.

Charges of robbery with a weapon and theft of a motor vehicle laid against him were dropped.

In June, accomplice Dustie Upton, 51 at the time of the crime, pled guilty to robbery with a weapon, possession of a prohibited device and driving while disqualified,

On the robbery conviction, Upton was sentenced to 729 days in jail, but given credit for 264 days for the 176 days of pre-sentencing custody he’d served, leaving 465 days remaining to serve. For the robbery, he was also ordered to pay $1,630 in restitution, a $200 victim surcharge and provide a DNA sample. On the conviction for possessing a prohibited device, Upton was sentenced to 90 days in jail, to be served concurrently, as well as ordered to pay a $100 victim surcharge.

For driving while disqualified, Upton was given a 60-day sentence, to be served concurrently, as well as ordered to pay a $100 victim surcharge. He will have a two-year driving suspension and will be on probation for three years.

On the evening of Dec. 27, 2015, an employee of the Foodland in Haliburton was carjacked at knifepoint as she got into her vehicle following her shift.

The carjackers were later apprehended by police in Bobcaygeon.

Quilting for health care

Members of the Fort Irwin Residents Association present a $400 donation to Dale Walker, far left, executive director of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation on Oct. 26 at the Fort Irwin Hall. The money was raised through their quilt fundraiser, with this year’s winner Jack Russel, front centre, presented with the two quilts on Oct. 26. The money is going towards the HHHS bone density project. The presentation was also in memory of Dorothy Hewitt, a FIRA member who helped with the hand quilted blankets before passing away this spring. There are approximately 80-100 FIRA members, many of whom gather at the hall every Wednesday for Ladies Day, to partake in activities such as crafts, quilting and socializing. The quilt draw took place on Oct. 5. ANGELICA INGRAM Staff

Consolation by Michael Redhill

A renowned professor of forensic geology throws himself off a ferry into the frigid waters of Lake Ontario. In his wake, he leaves a historic mystery – the hypothesis that a sports arena is about to be built on the remains of a Victorian boat where there is a strongbox filled with never before seen photographs of Toronto, filling a gap in the city's history. However, there is scandal in academia, and his colleagues believe he faked his research. But his widow is not prepared to give up on her husband's legacy and sits vigil over the construction site. As we wait for treasure to be unearthed, we hear the story of a young apothecary in 1850 struggling to make a living who, along with two other down-on-their-luck Torontonians, turn to photography to capture the fledgling city where penny nails hold together wooden sidewalks, and the occasional bear strolls down Main Street.

Michael Redhill is this year's guest at the Friends of the Haliburton County Public Library Book Gala. He also writes the Hazel Micallef series as Inger Ash Wolfe.

Consolation is available to reserve at the Haliburton County Public Library.

Forever in our memories: Creighton Feir

A dog's life

IT STARTED OUT JUST like any other journey.

I was heading home on a Friday night after a long day of work.

With a hot take-out pizza resting in the front seat of my car, I began making the trip home, ready for a week-end of relaxation.

Five minutes later that all changed.

Just a little way outside of Haliburton Village, I was driving along in a row of cars when I saw something jump out from the right side of the road, onto the pavement, in front of the car I was following.

At first glance I thought it was a few foxes, so I began slowing down, bracing for a swerve.

But as I got closer I saw the animals were not foxes, but dogs, and to my surprise, the car in front of me did not alter its course.

What happened next was a bit of a blur.

At first I thought the dogs must have made it safely to the other side of the road. At least that was what I was hoping.

I'd like to say the car in front of me stopped. But it didn't.

The car in front of me drove off into the night.

As I continued on I realized one dog had not made it to the other side of the road, and was lying very still in the middle of the pavement.

I pulled over, horrified.

Thankfully the two vehicles behind me pulled over.

There we were, four people and one dog who was no longer a part of this world.

At first we didn't know what to do. The shock was setting in.

Fortunately, one of the other drivers volunteered to go to the home across the street and make some inquiries.

The driver who was following immediately behind me went to the animal and moved him off the main part of the road.

I stood there, shaking.

Thoughts were running through my mind. Why didn't that car stop? Why didn't I pay attention to the licence plate? Who could do this?

A few minutes later a truck pulled up and a man with sadness in his eyes emerged.

I knew instantly this was the companion of the now deceased dog.

After some conversation and condolences, the man picked up his friend and placed him in the truck.

I felt a deep pang of sadness.

I have lived up here for seven years now and know that driving these roads at night is not fun. Many are not well lit and the wildlife always makes for interesting encounters.

I have seen three bears, three moose, countless deer and I'm sure hundreds of squirrels, raccoons, rabbits and more.

Living up here means we get to enjoy a plentiful amount of nature and its inhabitants.

But it also means we have to be extra careful when driving.

Drivers should take their time, always make sure their car lights are in working order and pay attention to their surroundings.

This upcoming weekend marks daylight savings, which means we set our clocks one hour back, gaining a precious hour of sleep.

But it also means that it will get darker sooner.

When you're out on the road make sure you stay safe and look out for those around you.

Accidents do happen, but your reaction to them is completely in your control.

BIA welcomes new administrator

HELLO HALIBURTON! It is my great pleasure to serve as your Haliburton Village BIA administrator. With Gail Stelter "retiring," I know that I have big shoes to fill. Gail's energy, enthusiasm and dedication to making Haliburton Village a better place for everyone is truly appreciated. Thank you, Gail – we all look forward to seeing you around and enjoying the many events and projects that you continue to involve yourself with.

Some have asked "what is a BIA and what does it do?" BIA is the short form for Business Improvement Area.

The BIA is a geographical area. All businesses – professional services, retail and hospitality – in the geographical area are members. Each year the BIA members elect a volunteer-based board of management. These volunteers meet monthly to plan events and advocate for their membership on local issues. Thank you to the members of the board of management for their service in making the Haliburton Village BIA the dynamic place that it is.

Starting later in November, the BIA WIN – Buy In And Win Contest is back for a second year. BIA WIN features a hot sunshine destination, arranged by Transat Travel, as the grand prize. Stay tuned to find out what great destination will be selected. Participating businesses will have ballot boxes. Please be sure to fill in a ballot, the draw will take place the Friday before Christmas.

There is nothing like the first snow fall to put people in the holiday spirit. And the Santa Claus Parade, held in partnership between the Haliburton Village BIA and the Haliburton and District Lions Club, really kicks off the holiday season. Please join in the fun on Friday, Nov. 25 at 6 p.m. with the Christmas tree lighting and sing along with Gord Kidd in front of the Village Barn. The Santa Claus Parade will commence at 6:30 p.m. Please contact Jim Frost at 457-4031 or frostdownhome@bellnet.ca if you would like to enter a float, or group, or participate in the parade. Everyone is welcome!

After the Santa Claus Parade please join us for Winter Warm Up at the Legion for a delicious pasta meal (nominal cost). There will be a children's craft area and gifts for all children. Gord Kidd and his band will also be providing entertainment. Bring the whole family and enjoy a great evening together: the official tree lighting, Santa Claus Parade and Winter Warm Up.

Grateful thanks to Leslie and David Chumbley from West Guilford for donating the Christmas tree, and to Lyle Stamp and the local fire department for setting up the Christmas tree for everyone to enjoy!

The Rails End Gallery will be the place to be on Saturday, Nov. 26 from noon to 2 p.m. for Santa Day, hosted by the Haliburton and District Lions Club. All children visiting Santa Claus will receive a goodie bag. Thank you to Jim Frost and the Haliburton and District Lions Club for their continued support and partnership, in hosting these community events.

Please bring the whole family, and be a part of the Haliburton Village BIA Holiday Season kick-off fun on Nov. 25 and 26. We look forward to seeing you!

Until next time, please stay up to date on the Haliburton Village BIA activities and events by visiting the Haliburton Village Face Book page or emailing haliburtonbia@mail.com.

Interesting

I WAS TALKING TO MY BEST FRIEND Tom the other day. He's an artist.

One of last things he said that I agreed with was that the worst thing someone can say to an artist is their art is "interesting."

"That's a diplomatic way to say, 'I would never buy that,'" he said.

I put that away for future use as we carried on and discussed more important things – in this case, soup.

This might seem odd but Tom and I have been friends for more than 25 years now and soup is essentially all we have left to talk about.

As always, the conversation got a little heated too – no pun intended.

It began when he asked a simple, almost innocuous question. "Do you like the beginning of a bowl of soup or the end?"

"I'm not an idiot," I said. "I like the beginning of the bowl. Then the entire soup is laid out before you, unsullied by spoon, unmarred by additional salt. It's a culinary palate. You can combine potato chunks with noodles or carrots and celery with a healthy serving of creamy goodness. The possibilities are endless. You?"

"Well," he said, "I beg to differ. You are an idiot!"

Then my so-called friend went on to explain how he thought the height of the soup consumption experience was when a person gazed down upon the remains at the bottom of the bowl.

"You look at it and realize you have saved the best for last. And, as you put down your spoon and raise the bowl towards your lips, you know that there is nothing cowardly about this. You understand that you are going to face that soup head on and come out unscathed and victorious. And then, after a slurp or two you feel satisfied with the whole thing and think, 'Who says I never finish anything?'"

"That's ridiculous!" I replied. "The end of the soup bowl is like that kid who is always picked last when street hockey teams are being chosen."

A moment of silence followed.

"Oh," I muttered. "I see I've struck a chord."

"Street hockey is foolish," he muttered. "You spend half your time moving nets. I suppose you prefer a cream-based soup over a broth-based one?"

I was incredulous he would even ask.

"All the great soups are cream based," I replied tersely. "Tell me I'm wrong. I dare you!"

After a quarter century of friendship, you'd think you know a person. But what he said next made me rethink all that.

"Soup can hardly be called soup unless it is broth based," he stated arrogantly.

"You brain-addled fool!" I spat out.

"Tell me, can you honestly say potato and leek soup is anything more than an oniony sludge?" he hissed.

"You know how I feel about potato and leek soup," I said calmly. "Take that back."

"No," he answered.

"Well then," I said, as I mustered up the courage, "Chicken with rice soup is a farce."

I'm not proud of what happened next but I think it was for the best.

Tom and I said even more unkind things – most notably he called cream of chicken soup a "stew" and I replied saying that onion soup was hoax perpetrated by the onion growing industry.

It got downright heated after that. And, as happens with most of our conversations, we hung up angrily and simultaneously.

"I told him," I muttered.

I'm not proud of this. But I will say that as I sat there I was able to give the debate a bit more thought. It was then that I realized that Tom was my best buddy and just like a brother to me.

"This is no way to treat a lifelong friend," I muttered.

So I called him back and we agreed to disagree.

"Of course, that's fine," he said with a tinge of sarcasm. "After all, there's no accounting for taste."

He asked what I thought about the illustration he had just finished for my back page humour column in Ontario Out of Doors.

I told him I thought it was interesting.

Reflections on volunteerism and a community garden

To the Editor,

Recently, I was unable to attend a volunteer appreciation/dedication ceremony held at the new commemorative garden behind "the little green house," home to Community Support Services, a part of the HHHS team. So, I decided to stop and visit the garden one sunny fall day and reflect on my own.

I walked the new paths, admired the plantings and stone memorials, sat on the stone bench commemorating Bernice McCann. I remembered special times as a hospice volunteer as well as good times picking vegetables and prepping meals in Community Kitchen with loving, fragile Kalie Ma while I gazed at the beautiful headstone engraved with her name.

Leaves from the mighty oaks and maples rained down gently upon this special place. I felt the presence of those who have dedicated time and effort to create and deliver services to support our community in the past, those who continue the good work today, perhaps under different banners and hope we will continue to make good, important things happen for all the right reasons in the future...after all it's still about "people helping people."

This garden space is dedicated to honour volunteers and provides a quiet place of reflection for community residents. Check it out. I thank everyone who contributed to making it happen.

Forego the fall cleanup

Garden

Belinda Gallagher

Musings

I LOVE GARDENING. You might say it is a mild addiction. Every job from starting seeds through harvesting vegetables and picking flowers gives me joy. Well, almost every job. Preparing the garden for the winter is the one task that drops further down the 'to do' list each year.

In mid September, the motivation is high. The soil is still warm and gardening attire remains easy – a ripped t-shirt and a pair of shorts. Coffee in hand, I head out to start the cleanup but there is nothing ready to be 'cleaned up.' The borders are full of fall flowers and a lucky lack of frost means the annuals are still going strong. Even dahlias and cannas aren't ready to cut back. Oh, well, sitting in a deck chair will have to do. A couple weeks later there was a hint of frost on the lawn. Perhaps cleanup can now commence. Less inclined to work in cold soil, I nevertheless don long pants and a sweater and set out for the garden shed to collect some gloves. There is a raucous party happening in the sunflowers that I pass on the way up the hill. A flock of gymnastic blue jays have discovered the plants and are doing their best Cirque du Soleil moves in order to steal a seed or two.

If that wasn't enough to slow me down, a few steps on there was a fat, contented squirrel following the example of the blue jays. No sense in taking down the bird/squirrel buffet just yet. Back to the deck chair to muse about the whole idea of fall cleanup.

A hand-me-down of the fastidious, British gardening tradition, this hack it, rake it, toss it tidiness was the sign of a "good gardener." Shrubs meticulously wrapped in burlap, perennials and ornamental grasses clipped to a uniform 6", and lawns devoid of even a whiff of leaf litter were the norm for decades. This obsession with cleaning led to the acceptance of, in my humble opinion, the most offensive noise pollutant ever – the leaf blower.

Originally introduced to the USA in the 1950s as a component part of an agriculture chemical sprayer, the blower portion became a replacement tool in areas where water use was restricted. No longer were driveways and patios "hosed-down," instead the debris was blown to the gutter. Fall clean up was taken to a whole new level and for decades many considered debris free gardens, healthy gardens.

Fortunately, our notion of a healthy garden changed in the last few years with the acceptance of yards as ecosystems supporting pollinators, birds and even beneficial fungi. With this new understanding, chore lists were revised and as I sit here in the deck chair I reconsider my tasks.

I will tidy the vegetable garden to avoid overwintering of pests and diseases that plague the tomatoes, peppers and potatoes and I will remember to tuck away the garden ornaments and hoses to reduce freeze/thaw damage. But I will forego fall cleanup in the ornamental gardens.

This year I will leave the perennials and grasses standing and the leaf litter on the soil and be smug in the knowledge that

Some of our native bees will hibernate in the hollow plant stems

Birds will find protein-rich insects under leaves and bark

Butterflies that don't migrate will have garden debris for winter protection

All manner of wildlife will have fruits and seeds for winter meals

Plants will have stems to trap snow for insulation

The debris of this season will be the food of spring

And most importantly, I will have a garden with that much advertised winter interest!

Scam strikes area organization

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

A $10,000 loss to a local organization is providing the public a reminder about an ongoing online scam.

The OPP reported an unnamed organization in Haliburton County received an invoice in their email requesting the payment of more than $45,000 US for equipment purchased. When the organization questioned its validity they sent an email to its purchaser. Subsequently, they received an email confirmation. The organization settled to pay $10,000 US, a portion of the requested balance. After the transaction, the organization discovered the fraud. It was later discovered that the email accounts were hacked by scammers.

This incident of "spearfishing" – when an email appears to come from someone you know and trust – comes during the Cyber Awareness Month of October and it was the first time this organization was targeted, but not the first time other organizations or residents of Haliburton County were targets, said OPP Const. Timothy Negus. Emails are full of information that can be used to the advantage of scammers. He said this isn't the first organization to be victimized.

"In all fairness this isn't the first organization that's just gone ahead and done something then realized after they've done it and go, 'oh, I shouldn't have done that,'" he said.

He adds it's important for those targeted to come forward and report it.

"Even if you don't suffer a loss," he said. "A lot of people call and leave a message and that's the end of it. It's been through the people that have gone online, reported it directly to an officer. Because when I get a report I will ask the person: Did you happen to contact the anti-fraud centre? If they say no I ask them to do it or I will forward that occurrence to the anti-fraud centre and it's only through continued reporting that it gets investigated."

Without the reports, law enforcement agencies will not spend as much time on it.

Negus said public awareness through the news media is key to prohibiting fraud. He speaks on the local radio station once a week about fraud.

Negus said of those targeted, far less than half are actually victims.

This past year there were 70 incidents of fraud reported in Haliburton County where a loss was incurred and a report made. The breakdown of the types of scams includes 12 credit card, nine Canadian Revenue Agency, four Microsoft scams, four ransom software, three Canada Post parcel scam, and sporadic spyware and cellular communication company scams. If no loss was reported they were referred to the anti-fraud centre.

He believes checks and balances are imperative to avoid becoming a victim of scams.

Negus recommends making note of recording the companies businesses work with; when paying invoices confirm the payee; if there is any doubt that businesses should contact the person responsible for purchasing or authorizing to confirm details and related costs; then have another person review financial expenditures before any payments are made; implement a pre-approval process for major purchases and don't underestimate the importance of internal communication. He notes that reputable companies have 30, 60 and 90 day invoice periods.

In his release, he said one method to determine if a file is "dangerous" is to avoid to opening files with the extension .msi, .bat, .com, .cmd, .hta, .scr, .pif, .reg, .js, .vbs, .wsf, .cpl and .jar. Generally, he said, files with commonly used extensions such as for images .jpg and .png, and for document file extensions of .pdf, .docx, .xlsx, and .pptx can be trusted.

Contact your local police service, the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre, report it to the OPP online at <http://www.opp.ca/index.php?id=132> or through Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477.

What DYSART COUNCIL Did

A meeting of the Dysart Municipal Council was held on Friday evening last.

Accounts no. 707-816 amounting to $9,500.00 were approved.

It was decided to write a letter to the Hydro Electric Power Commission in Toronto urging that construction be started of a service line to subscribers on Haliburton Lake at the earliest date possible.

A motion was passed that Lot 26 on Blk X Dysart be advertised for sale by tender.

Council decided to ask Edwin Hodgins to return his Taxi license immediately and his unexpired portion of license fee would be refunded.

A Prayer

This is a prayer said to have been found in Lancashire, England, on the wall of an old Inn:

Give us, Lord, a bit o' sun,
A bit o' work and a bit o' fun
Give us all, in the struggle and splutter,
Our daily bread and a bit o' butter;
Give us health, our keep to make,
An' a bit to spare for poor folks' sake.
Give us sense, for we're some of us duffers,
An' a heart to feel for all that suffers.
Give us, too, a bit of song,
An' a tale, and a book to help us along,
An' give us our share o' sorrow's lesson
That we may prove how grief's a blessing.
Give us, Lord, a chance to be
Our goodly best, brave, wise and free,
Our goodly best for ourself and others,
Till all men learn to live as brothers.

Haliburton At A Glance

We learn that the erection of new municipal offices for Dysart Township is a matter that is receiving serious consideration. The present office space is much too small to meet the demands of ever increasing municipal affairs.

More space is also required to provide suitable storage room for municipal records.

While we hate to admit it there are quite a number of mean people in our locality. On Sunday evening last Jack Neville left his truck parked at Paradise Lodge while he went with some friends to attend the midnight show in Haliburton. On returning from the show he started off for home but before he had gone far he began to have mechanical trouble when looking for the root of the trouble it was discovered that the gas tank had been filled with sand, glass and pine combs. The truck had to be towed home.

Kinmount Man Convicted On Driving Count

A Kinmount man was convicted in Police court on Friday of careless driving by Magistrate Gee. He was fined $10 and $25 costs.

Accused's light truck was involved in a collision on highway No. 35, south of Powels Corners on July 7th. The second vehicle involved was driven by a Toronto man.

According to the Toronto man, he was driving toward Lindsay when he saw accused's truck coming toward him on his side of the road. He said he attempted to swing to the left to pass the truck, when accused swerved back towards witness' side of the road, causing a collision near the centre of the highway.

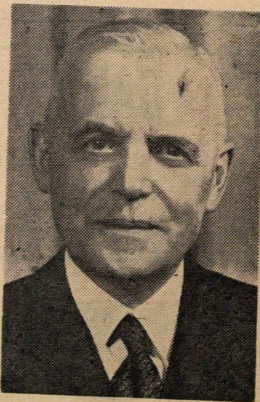

Accused claimed that he had noticed the Toronto man's car on his side of the road and could not avoid collision.

Magistrate Gee accepted the Toronto man's story in the light of evidence presented by OPP Constable George Mounstevan, of Lindsay.

A Sidewalk For You

A new sidewalk is being constructed from the residence of John Whitfield to the first crossing. The municipal council should be highly commended for taking this step and it is to be hoped that everyone who must travel in this direction on foot will use this sidewalk as walking along the highway is a mighty dangerous practice.

Members of the Wilberforce Curling Club were all smiles as they cut the official ribbon to mark the end of a successful project that included many upgrades to the facility. Wilberforce curling club kicks off new season

ANGELICA INGRAM

Staff Reporter

The curling club in Wilberforce has been given a breath of new life following some extensive fundraising, a substantial grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation and, most importantly, community support.

On Oct. 22 the club held a celebration to mark the hard work and energy that went into getting the club up and running again.

"Today is a celebration," said club president Darrell McQuigge.

Last week the club opened its doors for the regular season, which was done as a result of hard work following an early shut down last Christmas.

The unexpected closure came as a result of a brine leak, which was followed with some other much needed repairs.

The club was successful in receiving a $150,000 grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation, which went towards purchasing a new compressor, used to make ice. The new compressor, which does not have brine in it, is expected to have a lifespan of 35-40 years, said McQuigge.

A nearly year-long campaign titled Keep Our Community Sweeping fundraised more than $35,000 for the club through events such as a raffle, flea market, dinner and more.

The money raised was used to pay off a loan for $35,000 received from the municipality of Highlands East earlier this year.

Money was also received from the Haliburton County Development Corporation, donations, sponsorships and more.

The entire project at the club came in under the estimated $350,000 budget.

McQuigge said he is hoping people come back to the club and continue their love for curling.

The club offers 20 weeks of curling and five bonspiels a season.

The first bonspiel scheduled for the season is a Glow in the Dark bonspiel on Nov. 19.

Wilberforce Curling Club executive members present Highlands East councillor Joan Barton with a cheque for $35,000 on Oct. 22. The money is repayment of a loan the municipality gave to the club to make necessary repairs. The club had various fundraisers through a Keep Our Community Sweeping Campaign to raise the money, including a raffle and Oktoberfest dinner. HHSS students reflect on Capital Experience

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Two Haliburton Highlands Secondary School senior students are basking in the glow of a new found perspective after participating in the 12th annual Capital Experience, hosted by MP Jamie Schmale and his staff from Oct. 23 to 25.

HHSS Grade 12 student Rachael Reddering and Grade 11 student Andrew Carmount learned about how government works and discovered a variety of careers and occupations.

They were in Ottawa for close to three days touring, including participation in a mock question period before they attended the actual question period, a taping of CBC show Power and Politics, meetings with an advocate from Amnesty International, officials from the South Korean Embassy to Canada, International Experience Canada, Garry Keller chief of staff in the office of the leader of the official opposition, Rona Ambrose, the leader of the official position, and consultant Katlyn Harrison, who is an I.E. Weldon graduate, of Summa Strategies Canada Inc., a government relations firm.

The co-leaders of the Rotary Interact group at the school were part of a contingent of 15 high school students from the Haliburton – Kawartha Lakes – Brock riding and were chosen by the school's principal based on their interest in politics and for having leadership roles.

Reddering, a liberal-minded supporter of the Green Party, appreciated the opportunity to visit Ottawa and hopes to work in politics, which she said is important because it is related to how the country is run.

"I loved every single minute of it. I have always been interested in politics so it was fascinating to really see it up close. The part that stood out to me was when we watched question period. I loved this because I have watched them in the past on a computer so it was really cool to see it in person," Reddering wrote in an email.

She supports the Green Party because she believes the environment needs to be protected.

"If we do not pay attention to it, then we will not have a future," she wrote.

Carmount, who is also a Grade 11 representative for his student government and Green Party member, called this a "once-in-a-lifetime experience."

After hearing about what Schmale does, Carmount could see himself working on the Hill, possibly running for a seat.

He welcomed the opportunity to "talk to an intern from Amnesty International and working in an NGO (non-governmental organization) is something I'm looking at for a career. It was interesting to not only learn about their careers but also talk to them about its risks and rewards," he wrote.

The teenager is interested in politics' influence on society and how it shapes our future.

This trip reinforced his beliefs in protecting the environment and supporting people instead of corporations and lobbyists.

Capital Experience started with Schmale's Conservative predecessor Barry Devolin 12 year ago.

Schmale said this experience shows what you study in school isn't necessarily directly related to your career so it alleviates the stress students feel about choosing areas of study at post-secondary educational institutes.

This was Schmale's first year hosting students and he expects to continue next year, he said.

He said this would not have been possible without a number of service groups and local businesses who sponsor the students. Carmount was sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion in Minden and Reddering was sponsored by the Kin Club of Minden.

Schmale, who wishes he had taken advantage of similar opportunities as a student such as experiences to work in other countries, appreciated the visit and the opportunity to answer questions from the intelligent and thoughtful students with leadership qualities.

"It was actually sad to say goodbye because they were just so good to hang with and I enjoyed showing where I work and others work as well. It was good chemistry," he said.

I have always been interested in politics so it was fascinating to really see it up close.

The Red Hawks varsity girls field hockey celebrates after beating the North Hastings High School Huskies team 3-2 in the COSSA (Central Ontario Secondary School Athletics) championship final, which earned Haliburton Highlands Secondary School a berth to OFSAA (Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations) on Thursday at Thomas A. Stewart Secondary in Peterborough. The team will represent COSSA at the all-provincials in Kitchener-Waterloo this week from Nov. 3 to 5./DARREN sub-zero temperatures, forcing them to don toques, gloves and long sleeves and tights, worn under their short-sleeved shirts, socks and skirts. In four years, the two teams have each won two finals. Last year both teams advanced to the all-provincials because Bancroft earned its berth as host of the tournament.

Coach Steve Smith deflected any personal praise for the team's success this year, which included an undefeated Kawartha Field Hockey League season.

"I just picked up where these guys left off," he said, pointing to the players around him. "The coaching staff we've had has been great so it's easy when you come back ... they know the system. They know everything. It's easy to step in that coaching role and take the accolades. It's all these guys."

Smith did not coach for two years and continued to follow the team and hold a special place for the program.

The COSSA final didn't start well for the Hawks.

To the shock of the Red Hawks' supporters, covered in blankets or standing and sitting behind any type of wind blocking feature at the stadium, their team was down two goals within minutes of the start of the final.

Down 2-0, Hawks captain Jamie Little said the team kept its focus.

"It was really stressful, but we all knew what we wanted our goal to be today. We just worked really hard and ran as fast as we could. It ended up working for us," she said.

She said this team is quite similar to last year's in terms of speed and skill.

First year varsity goalkeeper Sonya Flatman, who played three games at OFSAA for the team, told her coach she should have stopped those two goals in the first half. Smith said not only did Flatman find her focus to keep the game within reach, but her team rallied behind her to win, backed by three unanswered goals.

Minutes after the second Huskies' goal, the Hawks captain Kenndal Marsden scored a momentum shifting goal from a shot in front of the net after stick handling past a defender for the open look.

Marsden has shown her on-field leadership with timely goals like this one.

In the first half, Hawks rookie Paige Billings, who has shown a maturity that belies her experience, scored the equalizer to tie it up at 2-2.

As the game wore on, both teams battled, working hard for every possession and foray into each other's end. However the Hawks' defence started to join the offensive attack to keep greater possession on the Huskies looking to break out of their end. The sustained pressure led to several short corners. Short corners were favouring the Hawks. The tide of momentum had definitely shifted.

Late in the second half, veteran Hawks player Rebecca Hamilton came through in the clutch, as she scored the eventual game-winner. She was left undefended in front of a gaping net after a backhand cross net pass by Abby Gordon rolled past the Huskies netminder and then eluded a pair of defenders to strike her stick for the tap in.

Hamilton said she's scored a few this season, but she admitted it was the most significant in her three years since she joined the program as a Grade 10 student.

"I was pretty excited that I was able to get our team to OFSAA because I didn't think I would have got a goal at all today," she said.

Initially, the petite player admitted she usually misses the shot at the side closest to the post.

"Sometimes when you need it that's what happens," coach Smith explained.

Smith said the comeback was within the team's capability.

Nothing needed to be said when the girls were down a pair after just a few minutes into the final.

"I don't need to talk to these girls. They know what they need to do. We had that conversation on the bus before we got off. If you want to go to OFSAA you know what you need to do. Kudos to them," he said. "The girls battled back, as I knew they could and proof is the pudding."

The back field was solid and included offensive pressure from Emily Klose.

"She just kept pushing the envelope for them and kind of shut down their offensive strike every time they moved the ball down the one side,"

Smith said.

Klose has a souvenir from an errant stick that struck her in the cheek. It slowed her down, but didn't stop her from playing to the delight of Smith.

"She's tough. She was like, get me back in," he said.

The final against the perennial rival of Haliburton wouldn't have even been possible without the gusty team effort in the COSSA semi-final game, which lasted close to two hours against the Crestwood Secondary School Mustangs, who proved to be a serious challenge.

"Not only not easy team-wise, I mean the other team was an excellent team and they came to play," Smith said. "But weather conditions were just horrendous, I think it actually made them think this wasn't going to be a cake walk so it was good to prepare them and it was good to prepare them for OFSAA."

The Mustangs pushed the Hawks into overtime (15 minutes, divided into two 7.5 minute halves). With two disallowed goals in regulation, the red and white faithful were, for the most part, bewildered and a few enraged. The Hawks though did not lose their composure and took a 1-nil lead early in the first overtime half when veteran Abby Gordon scored in close at the front of the net. The goal held up for the win.

Hawks focused on making OFSAA experience fun

Billings, who controlled the midfield and even scored an important goal to tie the game, is the sign of things to come for the future of the program.
“We’ve got good years ahead if we can have some more bodies like that,” Smith said. “Her [ice] hockey background has helped.”
There will be close to eight players leaving so next year will require some players to step up and assume the core positions. He doesn’t see any issues with that.
“You know what? The heart’s there.

The girls are wanting and desiring to represent Haliburton,” he said.
Haliburton will now play OFSAA (Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations) in Kitchener-Waterloo this week from Nov. 3 to 5.
Little wants to win one game there. However she knows there are more important things to concentrate on for a satisfying experience at the upcoming all-provincial tournament that will showcase the best teams in Ontario.
“As long as we’re having fun and doing our best is what matters,” she said.

Hawks alum wins two cyclocross races

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Ending on a high note is a great way to start a new chapter of racing for one young cyclist with Haliburton roots.

Nineteen-year-old Owen Flood, who was embarking on cyclocross racing the past few weeks, didn't just win one race, but rather two on the same weekend at the tail end of his time with cycling team Arrow Racing.

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School graduate was intent on a podium finish and started it off by winning the Guelph Cross race on Saturday, Oct. 22 at the Guelph Lake Conservation Area and then followed it up with a win the next day at the Vaughan Cyclocross Classic at the Veneto Centre Park.

Obviously, confidence was high after a breakaway secured his win in Guelph when conditions were windy and cold. Flood admits to playing possum, waiting at the back of a group of six riders, allowing them to lead and expend more energy. He noticed after successive laps of the race course that his competitors struggled with the sand pit section. They regularly dismounted to run with their bikes while he powered through while seated by taking advantage of his power-to-weight ratio advantage – Flood is a slight young man. On the last lap, when he was one of three in the lead group after the initial group split into two, he left them on an uphill climb with a burst of speed, which was set up by the sand pit to set up his attack.

The next day in Vaughan he sat at the back of the pack, numbering close to 50 riders for his second of two races on the weekend.

He said with few O-cup race series points he was relegated to the back for the start. It drove him to pursue the lead group by charging hard from the start, passing racers on his way to a hard right turn en route to clearing obstacles such as "bunny hopping" over logs and sprinting up and barrelling down the "fly-over" – an overpass with stairs at the front and then a ride down portion at back – past dozens of riders in the first few laps.

"There were definitely obstacles that played to my advantage to gain spots for sure," he said.

On the last lap, he was fighting for position with two other racers. Halfway to the finish line, Flood passed the second place rider, who fell. He took advantage of the miscue by increasing the tempo and reduced the lead group to him and another racer.

Leading to the finish, there is an uphill section that he figured would be the right place to attack.

"The second we turned onto the asphalt to head up to the finish I dropped a few gears and went out and went by the guy. He tucked in on my wheel so we turned the right hand corner going into the finish we were just wheel on wheel. It was a sprint finish. I ended up having a bit more in the legs to beat him by, I think it was only a second. It was really tight racing so it was really good," he said.

The mountain bike racer with six years of experience said fitness and bike skills related to cyclocross riding was key to his success.

Both races earned him upgrade points towards moving up from his elite 3 status to the top level in the O-cup for cyclocross racing of elite 1/2. Juniors, who are 18, must race elite 3, but with enough points can race in the top level category.

Despite this success, the rest of this cyclocross racing season is up in the air for Flood.

The victories will still give him satisfaction and ends his 2016 season on a high note after few highlights in his first full season mountain bike racing at the elite level.

"Definitely having good results gives you a lot of motivation heading into the off-season for the next few months," he said.

His first ever cyclocross race came earlier this year.

At the Baseball Cross race held at the Barrie Sports Complex during the Thanksgiving weekend Flood finished fourth.

Cyclocross is a bicycle race with a twist.

Racers use a bicycle that possesses attributes of mountain biking with the weight and lightness of a road bike. It looks like a traditional road bike except it is designed for the myriad of surfaces during a cyclocross race, which includes grass, trail, sand and asphalt. Flood's bike is close to being entirely made of carbon fibre, from the wheels and frame to many of the components. It has tires measuring close to twice the width of a road tire. They are glued on to carbon rims to enable the ability to run them with lower air pressure than a clincher to boost the traction by creating more tire contact to the trail. The entire bike only weighs shy of 17 pounds, which makes it easier to carry over and up obstacles such as knee high walls or "flyovers" that are mainstays on a cyclocross course. At the highest level, competitions are held in seasons when snow and mud are common place. The world championship is held every year in January. This sport was originally started in Belgium by road cycling racers, who put on wider tires to ride after their racing season during the autumn and winter in Europe.

"It's basically an all out effort as hard as you can go for 45 minutes. It's definitely unique because of all the obstacles because it is based in more park settings so there is not a lot of elevation, there is not a lot of technical stuff, it's more get on and off the bike to get over features and stuff like that. Getting back on and going as hard as you can to the next feature," he said.

After five years with Arrow Racing, Flood said it was time for a change this coming race season.

He will join Mavericks Racing based in Uxbridge. The 19-year-old elite mountain bike racer is studying at Mohawk College to be a strength and condition coach contacted the Mavericks' team manager to be added to the roster. It was a fresh start and great opportunity to work with the team's coach, Kyle Douglas, who is the team manager of Ontario based professional mountain biking team Scott-3 Rox Racing and a coach to elite rider Liam Mulcahy and national mountain biking champion Derek Zandstra.

"It gives you confidence in what he could do for you," he said, referring to the connection with Zandstra. Mavericks's major sponsors are Scott Bikes, Continental Tires, Clif bars and Scott-3 Rox Racing.

Owen Flood is appreciative to Arrow Racing, but is looking forward to racing for this new team Mavericks Racing.

Senior football team scores 27

Kawartha crowned

The field hockey team travelled to Peterborough to compete in the Kawartha finals on Monday, Oct. 24. The girls started off with a 7-0 win over Thomas A. Stewart Secondary, which put them into the finals against Crestwood. Battling through some adversities and injuries, the girls won 3-1.

Strong finish

The senior boys' football team travelled to Kenner for their season wrap-up on Thursday, Oct. 27. The senior Hawks battled fire alarms, rain, sleet, snow, and a chilling breeze as they challenged the Rams in a see-saw contest. Saving the best for last, the seniors put up 27 points on the scoreboard.

Evelyn (Perry) Johnston died peacefully on Thursday, Oct. 20, at the Highland Wood residence in Haliburton. Family and friends celebrated the life of this wonderful lady on Monday, Oct. 24 at St. Margaret's Anglican Church in Wilberforce. There Evelyn had attended usually sitting in the pew beside a lovely stained glass window she and her sisters had given in honour of her family.

A touching eulogy prepared by the family was presented by granddaughter Susan. Favourite hymns were part of the service.

What a long and interesting happy life she had. Evelyn celebrated her 100th birthday earlier this year in June. The Perry family first lived in Hadlington then a flourishing community. Evelyn enjoyed farm life including riding horses bareback.

Later when the school closed there they moved to a home overlooking Wilbermere Lake. After brief employment in Toronto, Evelyn returned home, She married Irwin Johnston of Essonville. They made their home down the hill from her parents' home. There they raised Bonnie and Terry.

Evelyn was a fine gardener and homemaker noted for her cooking, preserving, sewing and knitting skills. For a time she worked as the telephone operator when phone service first came to Wilberforce in the late '40s.

She and Irwin enjoyed many trips especially to different parts of Canada. Though lonely when Irwin died after 43 years of marriage, Evelyn carried on being a good neighbour and friend and enjoying her family. She loved the nearby lake swimming and paddling until very late in life. She owned and drove her own car. Evelyn was an independent classy lady who always looked like "a million dollars" right to the end.

She was predeceased by parents Fred and Florence Perry, sisters Marguerete (Ed), Kathleen (Jim), Joan (Wilbur), and brother Hugh, known as Bud, (Isobel).

Sympathy is extended to son Terry (Glenda), Bonnie (Roy Roberts), grandson Perry (Angela), Susan (Tom), David (Lisa), great grandsons and her many friends and relatives. Interment was in the Wilberforce cemetery. A reception followed at the Lloyd Watson Memorial Centre.

Play began for curling leagues last week with players enjoying the newly restored club. Hockey and figure skating are all underway at the local arena.

Several from Wilberforce experienced the music of Sheng Cai a young piano virtuoso on Sunday, Oct. 30 at the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion in Haliburton. This talented 27-year-old who debuted with the Toronto Symphony at age 15 has performed in major centres in Canada and the U.S.A. This final performance in the 2016 Concert Series was a powerful one greatly appreciated.

A Christmas craft sale will be on at the Lloyd Watson Centre on Saturday, Nov. 5 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Always some interesting items available at this annual sale led by Joyce Bowman.

Welcome addition to local family

Congratulation to Bill and Sherry Mulholland on the birth of their second grandchild, Lilian Marie Grace, born Oct. 7, at Soldiers Memorial Hospital weighing 6lbs. 5 oz. Ecstatic parents are Cameron Neville and Heather Mulholland. The little one is baby sister for loving brother Hunter. Also, first granddaughter for Brian and Jean Neville. Happy great grandparents are Bill and Freda Davis and for second time Carl Dugan is great-great grandpa.

As suggested last week, there is follow up on the Oct. 22 event at the W.G. Baptist Church, thanks to Ruth Casey of that congregation. Singing by young girls was accompanied in part by sign language. There were dress-up characters for skits. Ruth Carter and worship team also sang as did Darla Knezevic, a leader of music for the congregation. Ruth Casey, pianist enjoyed playing her contribution: Maple Leaf Fog. It sounds like a lot of fun and I'm sorry we missed it, but next time we'll make time for such a lively happy time with a welcoming congregation. Approximately 75 were in attendance.

Delane and Lyle Sawyer recently spent a 10-day holiday touring in Germany.

Wayne Cooper spent four weeks in Europe, taking in beauties of mountainous landscape as well as famous cathedrals and walking where Martin Luther and Sebastian Bach had trod in their famous lifetimes.

Euchre Scores:
High: Diane Madonik and Gerald Hadley
Low: Liz Jesseman and Perry Morrison
Most Lone Hands: Shirley Johnston and George Milne

Highland Storm midget A tournament finalists

The Storm spent the weekend in Elmvale and attended the Brian English Memorial Tournament. It began late Friday against the Listowel Cyclones, which was an entertaining game and a 7-5 win for the Storm.

The next day, the Highland Storm midget A team met with the Shelburne Wolves and grasped a 5-3 win.

The third game of the tournament, the Highland Storm midgets met with the Midland Centennials and were defeated 2-0.

The Highland Storm midget A team met with hometown Elmvale Coyotes for the semi-final game. The evenly matched teams offered a well-played game of hockey, with the Storm earning a 2-1 win in overtime.

The Storm midgets went against the Midland Centennials in the finals, they worked hard, did all they could but took second place, losing 2-0.

Novice Storm hosts Muskoka Rock

The Haliburton Timber Mart Highland Storm novice team hosted the Muskoka Rock for a double header in league game action in Minden on Saturday, Oct. 29. The Storm scored early in the first period and dominated play from start to finish. It was another strong team performance with good passing, positioning and skating. Strong defensive play kept the Rock off the scoreboard earning the netminder, Hudson Horsley, his first novice game shutout.

Coming off a big win in their first game, the Haliburton Timber Mart Highland Storm novice team were looking to keep their winning streak alive. The Rock came out much stronger than in their first match up requiring the Storm to step up their defensive play and positioning. The Storm responded and were able to capitalize on some turnover opportunities. The Storm finished their day on top with all players adding to the final tally. A great first game performance by Leland Kainellos and Jacob Lloyd helped the Storm end their day with a win. Way to go, team.

The Haliburton Timber Mart Highland Storm novice team were back on the ice on Sunday, Oct. 31 facing off against the Kawartha Coyotes. The Storm scored early in the first period and were relentless with their offensive pressure and puck control. Their offensive charge was too much for the Coyotes to handle. The Storm moved the puck well and fought hard for the rebounds resulting in more tallies for the scoreboard. The Storm defense held a strong blue line providing ample scoring opportunities. A great finish to the weekend with all Storm players contributing to the scoreboard and another shut out for Chase Winder. The Haliburton Highland Storm Novice team are on the road this weekend when they travel to Grand Bend for some tournament action. Good luck, team!

Peewee Girls continue their undefeated season

After having the previous weekend off, the Leveque Brothers/Rock Breakers peewee girls travelled to Lakefield Saturday to take on Ennismore. In a tight first period the Jets sniped one past the goaltender scored by Elyse Ives, assisted by Hailey Hudder and Emily Alexander. Not sitting comfortably with a one goal lead the Jets found the back of the net halfway through the second to open the lead to two, scored by Olivia Villamere, assisted by Emma Tidey. With a team effort the Jets potted three more goals for a final score of 5-0, goals scored by Chloe Billings (2) and Ryan Rupnow, assists to Villamere, Tidey and Hudder.

Sunday the girls played host to Otonabee in the first matchup of the season between these two teams. With another solid team effort and great goaltending, the Jets downed the Wolverines 8-0 to give Bella Smolen her second shutout of the weekend. Goals were scored by Tidey (2), Ives (3), Ava Smith (2) and Hudder. Assists going to Ives (2), Hudder (3), Tidey (3), Smith (2), Alexander, Rupnow, Villamere and Avery Coens. Come cheer on the undefeated Jets girls Saturday in Haliburton at 6 p.m. when they take on their rivals, the Peterborough Ice Kats.

Midget B girls Wrangle Wolverines

The Bancroft IDA Red Eagle Family Camp-ground midget B girls travelled to Keene on Saturday to play the always tough Wolverines in an afternoon match-up. After a scoreless first period, Keene took a 1-0 lead late in the second period, scoring the first goal of the season on the Jets. Bancroft used the deficit to fuel a comeback. Kenndal Marsden slipped a five-hole wrister past the Wolverine tender early in the third period to tie the game at 1-1. Both teams tried to score a winner, breaking the tied contest, but neither squad could solve the riddle of their opposing goalie. The tie game keeps the Jets undefeated with a record of 4-0-1.

On Sunday afternoon in Bancroft, the Jets hosted the Ennismore Eagles. The Jets looked to find an offensive gear and shake off their tie game – near first loss of the season as they took the ice against the Eagles. Jules Croskery opened the scoring with a beauty high blocker wrister midway through the first period. Croskery added her second, and eventual game winner, late in the first poking home a rebound to give Bancroft a 2-0 lead. Ennismore slipped a knuckleball bouncer into the Jets' net midway through the second to add some pressure to the Bancroft squad. Sara Switzer fired a blue line wrister through a maze of traffic in front of the Eagle tender on the power play to restore the two goal lead at 3-1 early in the second. Kenndal Marsden made the score 4-1 late in the second bouncing a shot off the Ennismore goalie from behind the goal line.

Switzer added her second of the game midway through the third period, finishing off a sweet rush with a forehand – backhand five-hole deke to make the final score 5-1. Great rebound effort, girls. The Jet's next home home, Friday, Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. in Bancroft against the Cold Creek Comets is currently being investigated to see if it may be re-scheduled. Bancroft's next two home games are on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 12 and 13, when they respectively host the Lindsay Lynx at 5 p.m. on Saturday, and the Cold Creek Comets at 4:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Bantams play Hurricanes in Minden

The Pepper Mill restaurant sponsored Highland Storm bantam team played the Woodville Hurricanes in Minden on Friday, Oct. 28. Unfortunately, the Storm lost 4-1.

The only goal came from Nigel Smith, unassisted in the second period.

The bantams battled hard against a team we had not played before, they were just too strong for us this evening. We look forward to the rematch in Woodville Saturday, Nov. 5.

The next home game for the Highland Storm bantam rep team is in Haliburton Friday, Nov. 4 at 8 p.m. vs. The Kawartha Coyotes.

Please come out and support your Highland Storm bantam!

Peewees hold off Shamrocks

On Saturday, Oct. 29 the JoAnne Sharpley's peewee team took to the ice in Minden to play the Parry Sound Shamrocks. Parry Sound came out with a vengeance scoring on their first shift of the game. The Storm scored to tie it up with a goal by Dylan Keefer assisted by Nick Phippen and Hunter Winder. On the powerplay the Storm put in another with a goal by Winder assisted by Ty Mills. Going into the second period the Storm ahead 2-1 the Storm put in another scored by Winder assisted by Mills. Parry Sound kept putting on the pressure and managed to get one in putting the score at 3-2. The Storm kept driving the net and scored another with a goal by Mathias Lee assisted by Kyan Hall and Zander Upton. Heading into the third the Storm up 4-2 Parry Sound was looking to come back. With Parry Sound playing most of the third period on the powerplay keeping the pressure on Storm goalie Darian Maddock. The Shamrocks managed to get one by to make the score 4-3. With Maddock determined to get his team the win he stopped everything the Shamrocks threw at him with the final score ending 4-3. The peewees head to South Huron next weekend to play in a three-day tournament.

Atoms take on Shamrocks and Bears

The Cottage Country Building Supplies/Ridgewood Ford Highland Storm atoms started their weekend with a double header vs the Parry Sound Shamrocks at home.

The first game the atoms played hard but lost 6-1. Taylor Consack saved an awesome 37 shots. Great job, Taylor. The single goal was scored by Austin Boylan.

The second game the Storm lost to the Parry Sound Shamrocks 9-1. Goal scored by Avery Degeer.

On Sunday, Oct. 30, they travelled to Bracebridge to vs the Bracebridge Bears. The boys played well but lost 4-2. Goals were scored by Aidan Perrott and Addison Carr.

The Cottage Country Building Supplies/Ridgewood Ford Highland Storm atoms travel to Omemee on Saturday, Nov. 5 for a tournament. Also on Nov. 6 the CCBS/RF Highland Storm atoms travel to Huntsville for a game against the Huntsville Otters at 3:40 p.m.

Bantam girls Jets win against the first place Lindsay Lynx

This past Saturday, saw the Parkview Dental/Canadian Tire Bantam Girls Jets host the Lindsay Lynx on home ice. During the first period, the Jets applied pressure and kept most of the play down in the Lynx end. Both teams played hard with neither team scoring.

Period two saw the girls have to work even harder as at one point, the Lynx had a two-man advantage. The team perservered and kept skating despite a few penalties and held the game scoreless.

During the third period, the tables turned and the Lynx drew several penalties resulting in the Jets having the advantage. Wanting to win and shut down Lindsay, Olivia Martin scored the first goal of the game, assisted by Haley Goulet at the nine minute mark. About a minute later, Kendra Bandy put one in the net from the point, assisted by fellow defenceman, Marissa Cannon.

Both teams played hard from start to finish. Courtney Semach, refusing to be beat by the determined Lindsay team, shut out the Lynx with a 2-0 final score.

If you would like to see the Jets in action come out and watch them play next weekend with two home games at the NHCC this coming weekend. The first, on Saturday, Nov. 5, the Jets will take on the Cold Creek Comets at 4:30 p.m. and on Sunday, Nov. 6, against the Otonabee Wolverines at 4:30 p.m.
